SCHOOL BUS SEAT BELTS

After decades of saying “compartmentalization is enough” we now know it isn’t. School buses are traveling faster and further than they did 50 years ago, while sharing the roads with more vehicles, including semi-trucks. Compartmentalization works in minor front and rear collisions, but only if students are sitting facing front, back to seat back, bottom to bottom, and feet on the floor. Side impact and rollovers prove that compartmentalization does not work.

Now is the time to SafeGuard our Future.
